NORTHERN TRIBUNE.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 20, 1883.

The ice being harvested this week is fully sixteen inches thick and of the finest quality.

About eight inches of snow fell Wednesday, and we should judge near as much yesterday.

One of our lumbermen predicts that logs will be a shade lower next spring than they were last spring.

We would call attention to the advertisement of H. Hale Cobb, Star Laundry. This establishment has a reputation of doing its work in the best of style.

The Arabella Root concert company appears in the fifth of the series of the Star course on the evening of February 9th. It will undoubtedly be one of the best of the series.

Unless our representative in congress takes some special interest in the matter, it is likely that the next river and harbor bill will contain no appropriation for Cheboygan.

The 500-mile tickets formerly used on the Canada Southern have been abolished, and hereafter Michigan Central 1,000-mile tickets will be good over this and all other branches of the Michigan Central. These tickets will be sold at $25.

Hon. H. M. Walker, of Detroit, is the new Commissioner of Immigration, and will assume the duties of the office Feb. 1st. We would like to have him pin the information in his hat band, that Cheboygan county possesses advantages for immigrants excelled by no county in the state.

Mrs. Geo. N. Case received a letter from her husband, the first of the week, in which he stated that the engineer corps making the preliminary survey of a route for a railroad from Beaver Lake to Alpena had reached a point twenty-five miles from Beaver Lake and so far had found the route quite favorable.

The Algoma's trouble began last Saturday, and most of the time since she has been fast in the ice. Passengers and baggage are being transferred by a daily stage line which leaves Mackinaw City at 7:30 a. m., and returning leaves St. Ignace at 1:30 p. m. A dynamite corps has been organized to try and open and keep open a track for the Algoma.

Those in charge of the entertainment and oyster supper announced last week to be given in the M.E. church and chapel next Tuesday evening, decided the first of the week to change the place of holding from the church to the town hall. The object is a benefit for their pastor, Rev. W. M. Campbell, and we bespeak a large turn-out so that it may be a substantial one.

The Sunday school of the Independent church had a social at the residence of Mr. Walton in the south part of town on Monday evening. Sleighs were used to collect the children and take them to their destination, where, in the language of some of the children, they had "the best time ever was." There were about fifty present, and a jollier lot of children are seldom together.

The many friends of Rev. H. A. Conrad will regret to learn of his serious illness. Last week he left home to preach at some of the lumber camps. He returned Saturday, not feeling very well, but preached at his church, the Baptist, Sunday morning but held no service in the evening. This week his illness developed in a severe attack of erysipelas, from which he suffers very much. He is under treatment by Dr. Bowes, and it is hoped he may have a speedy recovery.

Mr. A. J. West, whom it will be remembered, was the first and failing contractor on the Sturgeon river "cut-off," was given $1,500 extra compensation by the Board of Control at their December meeting. Mr. West, after doing considerable work, assigned the contract to Hon. Wm. McArthur, of this place, who successfully completed the work. West claims to have spent $5,000 before quitting work, and the award made him was only about one-third of that. There is no doubt that Mr. West lost money, so did Mr. McArthur, and our opinion is that strict equity would show Mr. McArthur more deserving of extra compensation than Mr. West, but when Mr. McArthur takes a contract he completes it, whether he makes or loses money, and that is the end of it.

Duncan City Items.

Reported for the NORTHERN TRIBUNE.

Thompson Craig and Kittle Smith left for Albany this week where Miss Kittle is attending school.

This weather just fits the saw-log business, and the managers are happy. It is estimated that half a million feet a day are now going in to the landings from Thompson Smith's camps, but at that rate nearly three months would be required to secure the necessary stock.

The machine shop is at work on repairs for Nelson & Bullen's mill, rebuilding an edger and making appliances for the easier handling of logs and cants. They are also doing some work for the tug Messenger.

One occasionally hears talk that points toward a shingle mill at Duncan, but any promises based thereon, like Venor's predictions, are liable to pan out a little too "previous."

Messrs. Will and Thomas James, of Hamilton, are domiciled in the office, and will hereafter figure as "the book-keepers." They are good looking boys, and will make many friends while making journal entries and ledger balances.

Egbert Smith arrived Wednesday, and is looking around with both eyes on the lumber business.

Fishing in the bay is well patronized lately, and with tolerable success.

Those Trespass Trials.

The article in the TRIBUNE a few weeks since, in regard to the trial of certain trespassers, has been attracting considerable attention throughout the country, and numerous comments by the press have been made about them. To give the readers of the TRIBUNE an idea of the tone of these, we reproduce two, one from the Lumberman's Gazette and the other from the Chicago Times. The Gazette says:

There is something strangely inconsistent in the fact that a homesteader in Cheboygan county is under bonds to appear in the United States court at Detroit for having cut timber on his own homestead before final completion of his title to the land on which he has resided four years and made valuable improvements. This fact would not be so passing strange if viewed separately and independently of other facts. It is not our purpose to attempt to screen the man alluded to for violation of law; but if that law were fully carried out, there are plenty of men occupying power and trust under the government to-day, who would probably be passing their time in the solitude of imprisonment, or perhaps better, would be despoiled of their ill-gotten gains, and compelled to earn an honest livelihood possibly by the sweat of their brow, which method has never been congenial to their tastes, or if it is they have never successfully demonstrated the fact.

The Chicago Times in an allusion to this subject, says that gentlemen known to be millionaires and popularly understood to have made their fortunes by plundering the public domain, are now to be found in the senate and house of representatives of the United States, and are on the Republican side in the roll-call. One of these is from Wisconsin, and he need not be named. Another is from Minnesota, and he need not be named. The designation of "timber thieves" has been applied to them among their neighbors, and their gorgeous wealth as lumbermen has been accounted for not only without public prosecution, but with renewed honors. Had the Cheboygan man alluded to stolen timber from government lands to the amount of millions of dollars, instead of cutting a few sticks from his own homestead, he would probably be a candidate for an important position under the government, instead of being under bonds for appearance in Detroit as a timber thief.
